REGIONAL DIRECTOR

Search reopened

Pennsylvania's leading environmental non-profit organization seeks a skilled environmental professional to help conserve and restore the natural beauty and resources of northeastern PA. Located in Wilkes-Barre, the northeastern regional office is a recognized leader in conservation and environmental protection throughout an 11-county area.

The Regional Director will be responsible for the strategic direction of the organization in the area. The Director will create a long-range plan, manage development and fundraising for the region, coordinate with regional and state-wide Board members and project partners, develop and manage grants and contracts in consultation with the CEO and the COO, oversee local office managers, establish close community relations, and implement effective programs that carry out the organization's strategic vision and mission. Key projects will include regional open space planning and management, brownfield and grayfield restoration, rivers conservation, development of natural infrastructure including greenways and river trails, and more.

The position requires 10 years of senior management experience, an ability to lead a complicated coalition with grace and good humor, and a strong commitment to the preservation of natural resources. Non-profit experience and demonstrated fundraising experience are strongly preferred. An ability to work with and communicate among diverse populations is highly desirable.

Compensation is competitive compared to the regional economy. The Council offers an excellent benefits package including vacation, retirement, plus life, health, dental and vision insurance.
